'Following the death of their friend, two girls in their late twenties embark on a road trip to spread his ashes. Seph and Alex take turns driving. Dan is in the glove compartment, in tupperware, decreasing in volume as the trip progresses' -IMDB.

Dan has left a posthumous video diary instructing his friends where he wants his ashes scattered. This 'melancholic comedy' (Chanya Button's description) follows the two women round Britain on this mission, where they discover much about themselves at the same time (AND give the cinematographer a chance to show us some beautiful scenery) The lead parts are taken by Laura Carmichael and Chloe Pirrie, with a variety of other stars (Alison Steadman, Jane Asher, Nigel Planer, Joe Dempsie...) and Chanya friends from the film industry filling the remainder.

Chanya Button has been in the industry for some time, working as Assistant Director on 'Harry Potter', UK Film Council (now BFI), and for Warner Brothers in LA, as well as some roles in the theatre for the Bush and Tricycle Theatres.
